It forms convincing proof of merit.

"I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and have always found them a good remedy for kidney and bladder trouble," says Mrs. Francis S. Harlow, of Killings Ave., South Paris, Me. "They certainly do strengthen the kidneys and relieve backache. I was feeling a little bad recently and knew that my kidneys needed a tonic. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they gave me relief in a short time."

LATER TESTIMONY

"I am certainly grateful for what Doan's Kidney Pills have done for me," says Mrs. Harlow on May 1st, 1913. "I willingly confirm my former endorsement."

Number Seventeen. Recollections of Early Settlers of Greenwood

By PROF. A. E. VERRILL of Yale University.

Paul Wentworth, when I used to visit there, as a boy, was a tall, well-built, gray-haired old man. His wife was still living. Isaac, then a middle aged man, married first, my aunt Lydia Hilborn.

They had a son and daughter, not far from my age. Both died a few years later of diphtheria, and their mother died almost at the same time. Ebenezer was then unmarried. He was tall and slender. I think he remained on the farm after the death of his father. The men were all cooper in winter making all sorts of wooden ware for sale. They also trapped bears nearly every fall. In visiting their farm, in the fall, I was always told to avoid certain woods where the huge steel traps were set.

The Wentworths also sometimes killed bears by searching for their winter dens in caves and hollow logs, and killing them while torpid. Bears often killed sheep on those remote farms. Bear meat was always eaten, unless too lean and tough. The bear-oil always commanded a good price, for hair oil, etc. The skins were made into coats and brought then about $10.00. Besides, there was good bounty on bears. Thus a good large bear was quite a prize. They sometimes secured four or five in one winter, on the Wentworth farm.

Paul Wentworth was chosen as a representative to the Legislature, in 1823, to represent this district, including Norway. His neighbor, Frederick Coburn, had been representative in 1824.

I used to hear the bear story of a farmer living somewhat farther northward. He was searching for his cubs in a remote pasture, partly overgrown with bushes. One was black. He hunted until somewhat after dark, when he thought he saw his black cow, and threw a dead branch at her, calling out: "Get out of here, you d-d critter." The "critter" growled viciously and charged toward him furiously. He ran for the nearest small tree and climbed it as lively as he could. The bear was so close to him, as he climbed, that she seized one of his feet, but his stout, thick leather long-boot came off, and she spent a short time musing it up, so that he had time to get up beyond her reach. The tree was a smooth white birch. She stood guard at the base of the tree for hours, part of the time digging and biting at the roots of the tree and the rest of the time growling at the man. His family soon became anxious about him, and started a searching party about midnight. When they came they found him by his shouting, about two o'clock A. M., nearly worn out by his shouting, fright, and long watching the bear. She made off when the searching party approached, but she left behind her ample evidence of her skill in digging dirt, at the roots of the nearest small tree. Nathaniel Toby; His Bear Fight; Other Wild Animals.

The farm nest northward from Wentworth's was occupied by Nathaniel Toby, who was famous among the boys, for his adventure with a female bear, whose cubs he caught and undertook to carry home. Their mother overtook and attacked him, threw him down, and standing over him nearly killed him with her teeth and hind claws, ripping off his clothes and covering his body with deep scratches. He killed the bear with his pocket knife, using his left hand, his right arm and hand being in the power of the bear. He opened his knife with his teeth and disengaged the bear. She drew off and died nearby. He carried the scars till his death. Sometimes, even when gray-haired, he could be coaxed by his boys to show his scars and tell the story of his encounter. His chest was still covered with long white scars. He said he got the cubs later.

The Toby farm was occupied subsequently by W. Ames, about 1856. The cougar or catamount was sometimes, though very rarely, seen in Greenwood in the days of the first settlers, but its hideous wailing cry was frequently heard. It was there a very timid or shy creature. The Canada lynx was not uncommon. Bears were also common. Hares, muskrats, skunks, and hedgehogs, or Canada porcupines, were always abundant, and are so to this day. Red foxes were formerly common in that district, but wolves and deer were never seen nor heard of there in my boyhood. In recent times, deer have become common in this part of Maine, probably coming in from northern New York, Vermont and New Hampshire. As usual, they were followed by a few wolves.

The appearance and increase of deer has been entirely due to legal protection, by long close seasons, etc.

Silver-gray foxes were sometimes taken. I know of one case in which a nest of young foxes was dug out and all were raised. One, from this nest, was a silver-gray of fine quality and sold for a high price. Some were cross-gray; others plain red foxes. My father bought the skins of all in this litter, and sold them in Portland. One of the parents was a "cross-gray"; the other was a red fox. The nest was taken on Harker Mountain, by a son of Edward Whittle.

Minks were common in my boyhood, and I earned much of my "spending money" by trapping them in winter. "Fiber cats" were very rare. Beavers and otters were nearly or quite extinct in that region. Ermine and weasels were common.

A cross-road, not very much travelled, used to run from the Toby farm eastward to the main road about a mile north of the village. On this road, near where it crossed the Mangrove Brook, was one house, occupied by the McKimney family. One of the sons was named Charles, and perhaps his father also was Charles. One Charles married Maria (Garland) Herrick, widow of Benjamin Herrick.

Bennett Neighborhood.

North of the village, to the east of the main road, there were two of the Bennett families. None have lived there, so far as I know, for nearly forty years past.

The most northerly cross-road was a short one, leading to the farm of Wm. Bennett, one of the earliest of the family there. He was a son of Francis Bennett, 1st, the early settler, who lived on a farm on the longer cross-road, later (1876) occupied by L. W. Martin. He was a cousin of Anthony and James Bennett, early settlers in Norway.

The children of Francis were Noah; William; John; Mary; Francis Jr.; Daniel; David; James; Mary.

William Bennett married first Arvilla Pinfield, and had one child who died young; second, Harriet Hersey. His children by her were Abigail; Warren; Stillman; Evaline; Augusta; Charles; Sarah; James; and G. Oscar.

may bring sickness, doctors bills and loss of work; you know that serious sickness usually starts with a cold, and a cold only exists where weakness exists. Remember that.

Overcome the weakness and nature cures the cold—that is the law of reason. Carefully avoid drugged pills, syrups or stimulants; they are only props and braces and whips.

THE DEADLY WEAKENER.

La Grippe in itself is seldom fatal. But the weakness, lassitude and loss of appetite induced by it leaves the system easy prey to the ravages of other ills.

"L. F." Atwood's Medicine is an unfailing remedy for these dangerous after-effects. It tones up the entire system, builds up the appetite and restores strength.

Mrs. Croxford's letter tells the whole story:

NORWAY AND VICINITY.

Cut His Throat, Then Struck by Train.

Frederick Daley, about 40, was found dead on the tracks of the B. & M. about two miles out of Springvale early Thursday morning, Dec. 17, by section hands. It is supposed that he took his life by cutting his throat with a razor on the tracks and that the train afterwards came along and severed his head from his body, as the razor and overcoat were found about half a mile above the spot where the body was picked up.

Daley was at one time foreman of the making room in Sears, Roebuck shoe factory in Springvale. He left last May and came to Norway where he was employed in the shoe factory. He returned to Springvale the Monday morning before from Portsmouth, where he had been working in a shoe factory. He said he was going to Rochester, N. H.

It is believed that he started to walk to Rochester and on the way committed the deed of slashing his throat with a razor. Evidently this was not completed for the man started back in the direction of Springvale and had walked three quarters of a mile before he fell or was struck by the train. It is not known what time during the night the deed was committed, but it is known that several freight trains passed over that section during the night and it is likely that the man was ground beneath the wheels by more than one of these as the condition of the body might indicate.

It is generally believed that the man attempted to take his own life and no suggestion of foul play of any sort have been made.

Daley was well liked in Springvale where he had lived for some time and where he had made many friends.

Christmas Comes But Once a Year

AND THE GREATEST GIFT IN ALL THE WORLD IS HAPPINESS

"We dreamed that we stood in the shadow of the last Christmas Tree on earth. We asked of the Cold Winds that sang through its branches, 'What is the lone gift upon the tallest bough?' 'That!' answered the winds, 'is the answer to every child's prayer on Christmas Eve—to the plea of all who have ever dreamed, but never again in vain.'"

And as we looked again at this lone gift we saw that it was the Happiness of all the World." May this Christmas Day, the birthday of the world, witness Peace and Happiness among all nations.

HOW TO STORE VEGETABLES.

Root crops, such as carrots, beets, parsnips, turnips and salsify, keep best when buried in earth. When stored in barrels a layer of soil should be placed in the bottom of the barrel, then the roots, a layer of soil, a layer of roots and so on. For large crops a pit may be used for storing roots. Select a high piece of ground, where the water will run off from the surface freely. Pile up the vegetables and place straw over them and then cover the straw with earth. Let a handful of straw protrude from the very top of the pit for ventilation. Enough straw and earth must be used to keep out the frost.

Cabbage can be stored in the same manner, but should be placed heads up on a bed of straw. Place the heads four wide on the bottom row, three wide on the second row, two wide on the third row and a row on top, the rows to be as long as desired. Cover with straw and earth, as described for root crops.

Potatoes can be stored in the same manner as other root crops, providing the protection is sufficient to keep out all frost.

It is well to dig a ditch around these pits leading off to a lower level to insure perfect drainage, keeping the crops safe from damage by water.

Onions and squash should be kept where there is moderate heat and dryness to prevent decay. A heated room in the house is the proper place.

Stockholders of the Bolster's Mills Packing Company will hold their annual meeting, Saturday, January 3, at two o'clock.

Hot Foot-Bath.

There is nothing like a hot foot bath to tranquilize the nervous system after a siege of prolonged study, literary labor or other intellectual activity at night. The bath should be taken every night, for about ten or twelve minutes, before going to bed, and the water should be as hot as can be borne. Let the water come well over the ankles. It will cause the blood vessels in the feet to fill and afford almost instant comfort and soothing effect as it withdraws the blood pressure from the overstimulated brain. This induces relaxation and eases the mental tension, quieting the nervous system so that sleep is promoted.

It is necessary to keep the water up to the highest temperature at which it can be borne, for at least ten minutes by adding hot water at the temperature of the foot bath becomes lower.

Virgil H. Johnson says he will sell his farm and he has good reasons for selling. See ad.

If I were starting out in trade I should want sufficient capital to enable me to advertise freely. Advertise freely, those people who advertise freely get the best results. If you will name the three largest advertisers in any town, I will name the three firms that sell the most goods. —P. T. Barnum.

Winter begins officially on Tuesday, December 22, 11 o'clock a. m., but it is not illegal to wear your winter garments during the remainder of the Indian summer.

PURE BLOOD MAKES HEALTHY PEOPLE

Hood's Sarsaparilla surely and effectively removes scrofula, boils and other blood diseases because it drives out of the blood all the humors that cause these diseases. They cannot be successfully treated in any other way. External applications for their removal have proven almost useless, because they cannot drive out the impurities that are in the blood.

Hood's Sarsaparilla makes pure blood, perfects the digestion, and builds up the whole system. The skin becomes smooth, clean and healthy. This great blood remedy has stood the test of forty years. Insist on having Hood's, for nothing else acts like it. There is no real substitute. Get it today. Sold by all druggists.

The Children's Meal Time.

Many childish ills could be averted, and much vexation saved nurse and mother, if children were properly fed.

Feeding is absolutely essential to a child's good health. By dieting is meant, of course, a large percentage of foods which are beneficial and a very strict eye towards regularity and hygiene.

A well-known specialist on children's diseases has given the following rules with regard to feeding the child:

1. Allow plenty of time for meals.

2. See that the food is thoroughly masticated. This will save all the agony of indigestion and so-called dyspepsia in later years.

3. Absolutely no eating between meals.

4. Never tempt a child with the sight of rich and indigestible foods.

5. Never force a child to eat. Examine the mouth which may be sore from erupting teeth. Watch his food, that it is properly cooked. If he refuses his food from peevishness only, take it away and don't offer it again until the next meal.

6. In case of acute illness, reduce and dilute food at once.

7. In very hot weather give one-quarter or one-third less food and more water.

The Mc Wain Packing Co. Will hold their annual meeting at the East Waterford school house Dec. 19 at 2 p. m.

Severe Head Pains Caused By Catarrh Cured By Peruna

I Feel It a Duty to Mankind
to Let All Know of My Cure.
Peruna
Did It.

Mr. W. H. Chaney, R. F. D. 2, Sutherland, Pittsylvania Co., Va., writes: "For the past twelve months I have been a sufferer from catarrh of the head. Since taking four bottles of your Peruna I feel like a different person altogether. The severe pains in my head have disappeared, and my entire system has been greatly strengthened. "This is my first testimonial to the curative qualities of any patent medicine. I feel it a duty to mankind to let them know of Peruna. In my estimation it is the greatest medicine on earth for catarrh." We have thousands of testimonials like Mr. Chaney's. Some of them were cured after years of suffering and disappointment in finding a remedy. Send for free copy of "Tills of Life." The Peruna Co., Columbus, Ohio. Those who object to liquid medicines can now procure Peruna Tablets.

TO THOSE ENGAGED IN AGRICULTURE.

Friends:

We would utilize our space this week to remind you that the responsibility imposed on the American Farmer by the great European war is tremendous. This country will be called upon, as never before, to help feed and clothe the nations of Europe.

The agricultural communities and the banks which serve them were never in a more secure position, or one that promised more, if the opportunities of the present situation are properly embraced. It seems almost providential that our land of peace and plenty should, just at this time—the time of the world's greatest need—enjoy such unprecedented abundance.

The United States is just now blessed with the greatest harvest in its history, in consequence of which we are in a position to command the markets of the world as never before.

It is obvious that for some time to come great prosperity should reward intelligent and persistent effort in agricultural lines. We view the future with great confidence, and believe that it holds wonderful opportunities which you should take advantage of promptly and boldly. The war in Europe has opened wide the door of the world's markets, and no one can enter with such abundance of wares as Uncle Sam. He cannot do it all in a month or a year, but it will be interesting to watch him for the next five years.

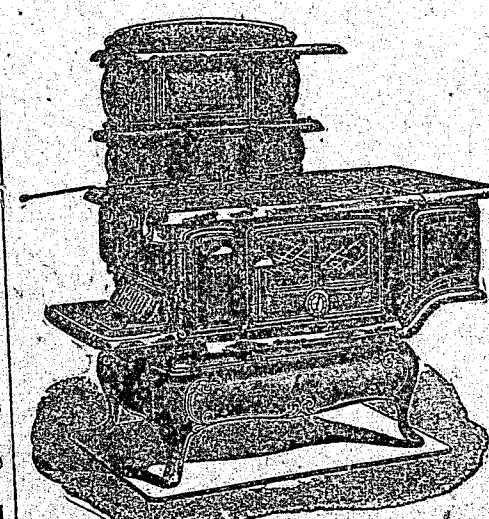

This is not a time for timid or uncertain action on the part of farmers, and it is none too early to begin planning your operations for 1915. We would preach preparedness for next year's harvest, more intensive cultivation, as well as increased acreage, more grain, cattle, hogs, poultry, etc. Care in seed selection and tillage will bring increased crops, for which there will shortly be increased demands.

Think it over. We are with you. If you need our aid, call and we will talk it over. If you have not started an account with us, we want you to do so. If you already carry an account with us, we want to help you make it grow. Consult us about your needs. Hundreds of farmers know the value of our service. We are quite as useful to the farmer as to those engaged in other lines of business; often more useful. We await the opportunity to serve you.

Faithfully,
H. D. SMITH, Cashier.
